

NUNGUN

(19th Century)

TRYST

He said he'd come at moonrise. Not a trace,
Not though the moon's now half-way up the skies.
Perhaps he lives in some deep mountain-place
Where it takes longer for the moon to rise