

Mary Dilworth

NINA

Nina walks stilt-high
to bus stops,
tosses her black hair
and aquiline nose;
she is an olive
salted with island blood —
transplanted
she might never have been rooted up.