

Michael Sariban

BROKEN NECKLACE

The water turned rough and the fishermen left along with the gulls and the pelicans who took to the rocks and backwaters as light drained from the day the wind a cold scarf around our necks

that night the stars trickled through the branches as the leaves released them, one by one