

environment of goodwill and mutual good regard, the possibilities for residential colleges in the impersonal machines we now have as universities are enormous. Perhaps at a later stage the more detailed ramifications can, and certainly ought to, be worked out. So far it can be argued that university colleges can be one place, a special place, in the modern multiversity, where people have a chance to inter-relate, where the numbers in college are, compared with the scramble outside, smaller, and this in turn would allow inter-personal activities to occur. In the midst of the ant-heap a place to be yourself, to think, to feel and, maybe, love and be loved.

L.J. COLWELL.

Big bellied black
Eyed Pakistanis
Starved at me
In Newsweek.

I thought
How can we do that to the poor Wogs
And heard myself
And knew.

PETER BELL